

NEW TRIAL IS GRANTED BY JUDGE BENTON IN BURNS CASE

Against Clark County Construction Company In Which Plaintiff Secured
A Verdict For $5,000 Damage.

Judge Benton Thursday morning granted a new trial in the $10,000 damage suit of F. L. Burns, of Lexington, against the Clark County Construction Company, which was tried at the last term of court and resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff of $5,000.

It will be remembered that Mr. Burns is an engineer on a Chesapeake and Ohio train No. 22, that passes through this city at noon each day, and while making his run through this city in September 1907, he was struck on the arm in his engine by a flying rock from a blast that had been set off in a quarry of the construction company adjoining the railway property in the northwestern part of the city, sustaining what he claimed, a permanent injury. The case was tried at the last term of court, which was held in January, and resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff for the amount stated above.

No reasons for the new trial are given.

MR. SAM JETT RETURNS FROM WASHINGTON TRIP.

His Son Hansford, Takes His Place
As Page in Congress.

Mr. Sam Jett returned Wednesday from Washington. He reports that his son, Hansford, took his place Monday as Page in the lower house of Congress. We predict for that bright boy a brilliant future.

Mr. Jett met Senator Bradley and other representatives from Kentucky. Our Congressman is a great admirer and favorite of Speaker Cannon, and it was because of his interest in the contest of Mr. Cannon against the insurgents that he was prevented from coming to Kentucky. Mr. Jett says that Mr. Langley is the busiest man in Washington.

The harness will be ready for sale court day and Mr. Bean will be glad to have his friends call and see him.

ALL READY AT AUDITORIUM

For Crack of Starter's Pistol in the Indoor Track Meet Friday Night.

All is in readiness for the starter's pistol in the athletic contests that are to be pulled off at the Auditorium Friday night. The number of entries has far exceeded all expectations and a new event has been added in the running broad jump. The men have been practicing on the course at the rink over the hurdles and have been doing splendid work in the high dive and high jump. Some new college records may be hung up.

The audience will have their first chance to see the extent of the improvements that have been made on the building which will be a great surprise to most of them. The entire area under the roof has been arched over with steel sheeting and the soft tints of the coloring and the neat appearance of the whole house will be a revelation to old patrons. The sides of the building have been ceiled in and without narrowing the skating surface one foot, the place has been made wonderfully more attractive. Tomorrow night will be the first time for some days that skaters have been allowed on the floor and will be the last night but one, for skating this year.

The proposed list of officials for the contests is as follows: V. I. Moore, manager; George S. Dalgety, Clerk; C. H. Bowen and Austin Reeves, timers; D. B. Scobee, Jeff Stewart and Jas. Phillips, judges. The contests begin promptly at 8 p. m., and will close about 9. There will be skating before and after the feature events and the general admission price will be 25 cents. This will, of course, include privilege of skating.

LAWRENCE F. ABBOTT.

MR. ROOSEVELT ON THE WAY TO THE OUTLOOK OFFICE IN NEW YORK, WHERE HE IS AN EDITOR.

Mr. Roosevelt was not long in taking up his duties as an editor on the Outlook in New York after his retirement from office. On his first day at the Outlook he reached New York from Oyster Bay at 9 o'clock in the morning and was at his desk dictating to a corps of stenographers before 10. He would not talk to newspaper reporters, but the camera artists were on hand and made snapshots of him as he was about to enter his office. The accompanying illustration was reproduced from one of these snapshots. The man carrying the overcoat is Douglas Robinson, Mr. Roosevelt's brother-in-law, and the man with his hand up is Lawrence F. Abbott of the Outlook.

OLLIE JAMES STANDS BY MINORITY LEADER

Refuses Committee Assignment and Cannon Releases Him Though
the House Votes No.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Messrs. Bartlett, of Georgia, and Ollie James, of Kentucky, made good their caucus pledge not to accept committee appointments unless first approved by their minority leader, Mr. Clark, and flatly refused to serve on the committee on Mileage, the membership of which was announced by the Speaker.

No objection was made because of Bartlett's attitude, but it required the vote of the House before Ollie James was excused, by the Speaker, although it was manifest the vote was overwhelmingly against excusing him.

KENTUCKY AT SEATTLE

Will Be Well Represented at the Great Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition.

Special to The News.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 18.—The State of Kentucky evidently realizes that the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, to open at Seattle, June 1, will be an excellent means of advertising for the Governor has appointed a commission to arrange for participation at the Pacific exhibition and the Blue Grass State will be well represented. This was encouraging news to thousands of former Kentuckians, now residents of Washington, Oregon and California who desire to see their native State represented in some manner at the exposition.

Kentucky at Seattle. Kentucky is following the lead of several Eastern and Middle Western States in this matter and when the exposition opens in a couple of months, this grand old Southern State will be there with flying colors and will join with the Western States in extending a welcome to the world at large on the shores of the Pacific.

Kentucky will have no need to be ashamed of representation at Seattle for the exposition has long ago been pronounced as one of the most beautiful ever planned and it will be ready a month before the opening date. This is a very safe statement to make since the exposition as a whole is now more than ninety per cent complete and there still remains two months to add the finishing touches.

Government Exhibit.

The United States government will have more space at Seattle for exhibits than any exposition held in recent years, not excepting the great fairs at St. Louis and Chicago. The government structures are fast nearing completion on Uncle Sam will have separate buildings in which to house the displays from Alaska, Hawaii and the Philippines. The main building will show the exhibits from the various departments at Washington and other buildings will be used by the government fisheries and the biograph department.

Among the larger State buildings on the grounds will be the handsome structures erected by Oregon, Washington, California and New York. Canada has a magnificent building and the Grand Trunk railroad a dignified looking structure near by. The auditorium, fine arts, machinery hall, forestry building, Arctic Brotherhood and the woman's buildings are permanent structures to revert to the University of Washington.

Many Buildings Finished.

The manufactures, mines, fisheries, foreign place, oriental building as well as the group of government buildings form the main picture of the exposition and surround the Cascades and geyser basin, the main oriental features of the fair. The majority of the buildings were finished three months ago and the structures now in the course of construction will be complete in several weeks. The landscaping of the grounds is progressing and every street and walk has been paved with asphalt.

The amusement street at the exposition is called the Pay Streak and there will be assembled some of the greatest shows in the history of the amusement world. The department of special events has set aside July 30, as Kentucky Day when it is proposed to have as many native Kentuckians possible assemble on the exposition grounds to do credit to their State. Appropriate addresses will be made and a special program carried out.

PAYNE DESIRES PROMPT ACTION ON THE NEW TARIFF SCHEDULES

House Committee Tackles Bill Thursday—The Debate Will Begin Monday In The House.

Washington, March 18.—The full membership of the house committee on ways and means, including Democrats as well as Republicans, will today take up the consideration of the Payne tariff bill.

It is Chairman Payne's desire to get the bill reported to the house at the earliest possible moment, but it is not likely that the general debate will begin before Monday.

Minority Leader Clark announced that he would make every effort in the committee, as he would on the floor of the house, to have the bill amended, and for that reason would ask for longer time than proposed by the Republican leaders. He added, however, that he would not press for more time for the preparation of a minority report, as that could be formulated as well after the bill had been reported as before. Mr. Payne's inclination is to get the bill into the house at the earliest practicable moment, and his plans are so complete that it is not believed he will yield for a mere plea to offer amendments, which the minority as well as the majority know will not be accepted.

It is probable that a compromise will be reached and that the Democratic members will accept a proposition which will permit them to present their amendments on the floor. Mr. Clark indicated that his principal plea would be for that privilege. He said he did not consider general debate as of nearly as much importance as the discussion of the bill paragraph by paragraph, with the opportunity to suggest changes in the various schedules. It is therefore probable that if Mr. Payne and his fellow Republican members of the committee concede this privilege, the Democrats will accept it in lieu of a similar privilege in committee and make no serious protest against the immediate reporting of the bill.

No announcement as to the length of time that will be given for debate has been made, and Mr. Payne is quite wary on this point. The Dingley bill was under discussion in the house for only ten days, and of that time four days were devoted to general debate. It was considered under a rule fixing the hours of meeting, limiting the time of debate and prescribing the method of offering amendments. The Democrats still remember that under the regulation concerning amendments they found no opportunity to force test votes on particular schedules. Under the rule the committee could present amendments at any time, but individual members could only suggest changes in the schedules under consideration. As the entire six days were devoted to the first schedule, dealing with chemicals and drugs, they found very little opportunity to make effective suggestions. They probably will resist such a rule for the consideration of the present bill.

Whether there will be any rule regulating the consideration of the Payne bill remains to be seen. It is Mr. Payne's present purpose to begin the general debate before asking to have a rule brought in, and whether any will be ordered probably will depend on circumstances. He expects also to give somewhat more time for the consideration of the bill by the house than was given to the Dingley measure. It is recalled that the debate on Mr. Dingley's proposition was begun on March 22, twelve years ago, the same day of the same month on which the general discussion of the Payne bill begins. On the former occasion all discussion ended and a vote was taken on March 31.

Senator Aldrich, chairman of the senate committee on finance, which will deal with the bill in the senate, called a meeting of the Republican members of the committee for today, with the idea of immediately beginning consideration of the house measure. The finance committee suffered seriously from the defeats of the recent elections, and as a consequence the Republican membership numbers only four senators. They are Messrs. Aldrich of Rhode Island, Burrows of Michigan, Penrose of Pennsylvania and Hale of Maine. Mr. Aldrich says, however, that they can take up the bill as a subcommittee, and he hopes to have them do so.

Mr. Aldrich declared that he had not looked at the house bill, and he declined to make any comment upon it. It is known, however, that many senators make serious objection to the changes from the present law, and the hope is now here expressed that the bill will not be materially amended before it leaves the senate.

Senator Hale, chairman of the Republican caucus, is among those who find the bill objectionable. "It ablutely murders the wood pulp and paper industry of Maine," he said. "This is the most important industry in our state, and we shall resist the change with the utmost possible vigor."

Mr. Hale authorized this statement, but while he found many of the features to be objectionable from his point of view, he declined to specify them. He predicted that the bill would be before congress for the next three months or more.

The committee on finance will not grant any hearing, but will consider any written or printed statements which may be presented to it.

One of the most significant features of the Payne bill is the new drawback provision. It extends this privilege so that an American manufacturer need not use the material which he has imported in order to secure the refund duties which he has paid on his material. If he uses materials produced in this country in equal amount with the material which he has imported he will be entitled to the drawback benefits, provided the domestic materials are of equal productive manufacturing quality and value.

The inheritance tax provision of the bill is similar to the New York state law. It provides a tax of 5 per cent on all inheritances over $500 that are collateral inheritances in which strangers are the legatees. In cases of direct inheritance, the taxes prescribed are: On $10,000 to $100,000, 1 per cent; on $100,000 to $500,000, 2 per cent; and on those over $500,000, 3 per cent. It is estimated that $20,000,000 annually will be derived from this tax.

The inheritance tax provisions exempt from taxation any property bequeathed to any religious, educational, charitable, missionary, benevolent, hospital or infirmity incorporation. Personal property other than money or securities bequeathed to a corporation or association organized exclusively for the moral or mental improvement of men or women or for scientific, patriotic or similar purposes is made exempt from the tax. A discount of 5 per centum is provided for if the tax is paid within six months from the time it is due. An interest will be charged and collected at the rate of 10 per cent a year if the tax is not paid within 18 months from the time it accrued. If an estate is tied up in necessary litigation 6 per cent interest will be charged.

A special agent to conduct investigations to secure the efficient enforcement of the inheritance tax is provided for at a salary of $3,000 a year. In order to prevent the confusion which attended the enforcement of the Dingley bill on the day on which it became a law, the Payne bill is not to take effect until the day after it is enacted.

The estimated revenue under the tariff duties prescribed in the bill amount to $300,000,000. This is an increase of about $10,000,000 over the Dingley bill.

The principal changes in the existing schedules are as follows: Coffee is left on the free list. No change is made in the tax on beer. A tax of 8 cents a pound is levied on tea coming from the country where it is produced and 9 cents on tea coming from other countries. Tea is on the free list in the Dingley law.

Wood pulp coming from any country that does not have an export duty on certain forest products is to be admitted free. Printing paper duty is reduced from 66 2/3 and 50 per cent, according to value.

The tariff on lumber is reduced 50 per cent, and the same is true of steel rails and some other steel products.

Cold is placed on a reciprocal basis and so are agricultural implements. They will be received free from any country that admits free similar articles from this country.

Wool of the first and second class is unchanged. The same is true of oil.

A reduction of 5 cents per 100 pounds is made in refined sugar. Iron ore is placed on the free list. Hides are free and shoes reduced 40 per cent.

The greater part of the increases have been placed on luxuries, and cuts have been made where it was thought they would increase the revenue to the best advantage.

To provide against panic conditions there is re-enacted the provision for the issuance of certificates to run one year to replenish the treasury, raising the amount from $100,000,000 to $250,000,000, the amount sufficient to provide at any time against two or three years of depressed business conditions.

If you make "other things" pay for the advertising up to the point of partial adequacy, after that the advertising will pay for the other things—for ALL of the other things.

VOTE FOR THE ROAD

AMENDMENT.

There is no question before the people of Kentucky equal to that of good roads. If part of the money now being expended by the government, the States and the counties was spent on the roads, the returns in substantial progress would be much greater. As a missionary agency, there is nothing equal to good roads. We use the word missionary in its broadest sense. Good roads will enable the people to attend the churches, and the children to get to the schools and the farmers to get their produce to market. Farm lands will be worth more. Trade will be increased. Social life will be improved. There is nothing that is good but what will be made better by the establishment of good roads. To get a thorough system of roads, it is necessary to have cooperation with all of the authorities and parties interested. Government aid is only a question of time. At the election this fall an amendment to the State Constitution will be voted on. Some features of our present Constitution will appear to have been adopted with the idea that the people cannot be trusted. As it is, no aid can be given by the State in any form. If the amendment carries it will give the Legislature the power to enact equitable laws that will put on foot a comprehensive system for making new roads where needed and improving those already established. Vote for the amendment.

A FIVE-FOOT SHELF OF BOOKS.

President Eliot does not designate the volumes he would put on his "five-foot shelf of books" the reading of which for ten minutes a day "would give any man a liberal education."

But the space assigned could be made to include approximately three-fourths of the "Hundred Best Books," lists of which have been drawn up by Sir John Lubbock, Frederic Harrison and other qualified judges of literature. Well printed and tastefully bound in one of the libraries of cheap reprints, they would cost perhaps $20—less than a college tuition fee for one term.

It would be a shelf of very substantial literature—not a "best seller" in the lot, but Greek dramatists and historians, Latin poets and orators, Dante, Goethe, Shakespeare, Milere, Cervantes; "The Pilgrim's Progress" and "The Id," no doubt, along with the works of the great masters of romance—strong meat for mental digestions enfeebled by current fiction. Yet in these books consistently read lies the basis of a wider culture than is represented by a B. A.

degree. These are the books that may profitably be read and reread, sixteen times if necessary, as Macaulay read Sir Charles Grandison.

Such books are not discussed at bridge luncheons. The enormous sale of the libraries of cheap reprints indicates the existence of a truer popular taste for reading than is generally believed.

OPERA HOUSE

"Strongheart."

A decidedly important theatrical offering of the Winchester Theatre on Thursday, March 18, will be the appearance of "Strongheart," the reflex of college life which has proved such a great success for the past three years. The play, which is a comedy drama of the best type, was written by William C. De Mille and has earned columns upon columns of earnest appreciation from the best critics.

"Montana."

When Harry D. Carey wrote "Montana" he knew his subject having spent several years on his ranch in Montana. He understood the spirit of the West and how to stage it. In a plot full of dramatic situations he has given a picture of the honesty, lawlessness and dare-devil humor of the Western cow country intermingled with a beautiful love story, that is essential to a play of this type. Mr. Carey has surpassed all former efforts in placing "Montana" before the public this season inasmuch as he has had entirely new scenery built, added new and greater effects, and in short the words massive, would not seem of a justice to his untiring efforts. The play will be at the opera house Saturday, matinee and night.

"Lena Rivers."

"Lena Rivers" a dramatization of Mrs. Mary J. Holmes' novel will be presented at the opera house, matinee and night, Tuesday, March 23. The presentation of the play has been awaited with a great deal of interest. The comedy comes with the glitter and eclat of its New York and Boston engagements. Those who witness the play will find in its scenes that are likely to be remembered for many days. One of these the little barefooted Lena and the faithful old Granny bidding farewell to the old home in Sloumville, Mass., as they start on their journey to their new home in the South. Another is that of the party which brings together the heroine and her handsome Southern lover, and serves also as an opportunity for the wearing of some of the most beautiful gowns ever seen in this city. Burton Nixon has given the play a thoroughly adequate production and the company is described as being one of much strength and cleverness, it being identical to the one seen in the metropolitan engagements of the attraction.

$10,000 FINE AGAINST REFINERY SUSTAINED.
FRANKFORT, Ky., March 18.—The Court of Appeals has adjudged that the Indian Refining Company must pay a fine of $10,000 for polluting the waters of Elkhorn Creek with refuse oil, caused by overflow from its reservoirs near Georgetown, Scott county.

The refining company was indicted in the Franklin Circuit Court. Residents along Elkhorn testified that the water was rendered unfit for drinking and thousands of fish killed by the oil in it. The case was very hard fought in the lower court and attracted much interest.

The Difference.

"It's funny what a difference it makes," said the woman, "whether we are eating dinner with the man in the little blue kitchen, or at a table d'hôte. If he feeds his ear with his spoon in the little blue kitchen we go into fits, but look at him now! Eating his spaghetti with his bread stick and wiping his fingers on the table cloth, and I don't care at all. Do you?"

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 18.—No troops will be sent into the dark patch because of the reported night rider outrages in that section. The attitude of the State officials this year will be to let the tobacco men settle their difficulties.

Too Great a Strain.

Every once in a while the actor while taking the part of a duke in a play would spend large sums of his stage money. On one of these occasions it seemed too much for a certain person in the audience, when a voice rang shrill and clear through the house: "Hey, Bill, how about that five you owe me?"

First Mention of Playing Cards.

The earliest direct mention of playing cards discovered so far is in the "History of the City of Viterbo." The author quotes Covelluzzo, who wrote about the end of the fifteenth century as follows: "In the year 1379 was brought into Viterbo the game of cards, which comes from the country of the Saracens and is with them called nab."

You Cannot Answer These Questions!

1—Why do you continue bathing your knees and elbows one at a time, when you can stretch out in a full bath tempered to suit you, and can do so every morning if you wish?

2—Why pump and carry water for your kitchen and laundry work when you can have it at hand for the turning of a faucet?

3—Why take chances on drinking germ-filled cistern water when you can get it from a large reservoir filtered through the best filter plant South of the Ohio River?

4—Why have a dry, dismal-looking yard when you can have it filled with green grass and blooming flowers, and can at the same time get rid of the dust in the street?

5—Why suffer other inconveniences when you can have everything for the comfort and health of your family right in the house?

6—Is it not true that the answer is not "lack of money," but lack of economy and enterprise and indifference to getting the most out of life?

Bridge.

Mrs. Edward Clark entertained a few friends informally yesterday afternoon at "Bridge", in compliment to her charming guest, Miss Elsa Brown, of Boston, Mass.

The house had huge vases of March lilies placed here and there to add charm and beauty to the scene.

Mrs. Clark received her guests in her usual delightful way. Bridge was played to close the afternoon, and a dainty and delicious luncheon was served at the small tables.

Mrs. Clark's guests were: Miss Elsa Brown, the honor guest, Mrs. Platt, of Asheville, N. C., Mrs. Troy, of Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. Carrie Buckner, Mrs. John Bean, Mrs. Gus Brooks, Mrs. Bonde and Miss Susan Buckner.

Noble Venture.

With Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan, behind it, there doesn't really seem to be much chance that a restaurant, to be started at the Brooklyn Navy Yard in May, can be a failure.

The financier's daughter is going to start it so the government employes will be able to get something to eat without going to saloons outside the Navy Yard. Miss Morgan learned of conditions at the Navy Yard when she made a visit a year ago.

The entire Women's Department of the National Civic Federation is behind the venture. Meals will be served at the very lowest possible cost—just enough to cover the expense.

Nothing Tight.

"While woman in her most tantalizing mood will number on her frock 500 buttons for hubby to toy with, there will be nothing tight this season but the 'underneath,'" says Miss Elizabeth A. C. White, President of the National Dressmakers' Association. If the strings in the "underneath" slacken "the whole of you" slips every time you put your foot down.

The five hundred buttons are one of the accessories to the ecclesiastical gown. To be strictly accurate, a few hundred cases are merely "applied" and run up and down the straight expanse of woman like so many racers making for a goal. But from the neck to the hem of the skirt there are battalions that require the hook. The ecclesiastical in many of its phases keeps close to the original. The robes of Archbishop Farley in some church ceremonial could hardly be distinguished from those of the feminine members of the congregation. Simple forms imitate the priest's cassock, which, being absolutely guiltless of fullness at any stage, gives the unpleasant suggestion that the lady has dropped her skirt somewhere, by the wayside and is escaping in some phase of that mysterious "underneath" to which Miss White refers.

Good crowds greeted the play "Strongheart," at the opera house, yesterday afternoon and evening.

Robert Galliard, as Strongheart, the Indian, the central figure of the play, was greatly applauded.

The football game, as told by Strongheart, is very exciting. Strongheart is put out of the game at the end of the first half being unjustly accused of giving the signals of his team to the other side. As he stands in the dressing room with a crippled team mate watching the game, he relates the scenes to his audience.

In the end Strongheart proves the guilt of the villain and wins the girl he loves but is called back to his race to take up the place of his father, who was the chief of his tribe.

He is told not to bring a white wife to the Indian village and after a struggle he renounces the woman he loves and goes alone to his people. The performance is excellent and at all times interesting.—The Lexington Herald.

Montreal, March 18.—Four persons are dead and 30 others were more or less seriously injured as the result of the blowing out of a washout pipe on the locomotive hauling the Boston express, on the Canadian Pacific, three miles out of the station.

Sizzling steam filled the cab and the engineer and fireman were forced to jump. REPORTS BILL TO HOUSE Committee By 13 to 6 Decide Against All Amendments to Measure.

WORKINGMEN ALARMED

Iron Workers Discuss the Proposed Changes in Tariff Schedules.

Washington, March 18.—The workingmen of the country employed in the iron and steel trades view with alarm the Payne tariff bill, according to a statement issued by L. Lewis, vice president, and John Williams of Pittsburgh, secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of North America. The statement is as follows:

"The tariff bill presents so many and drastic reductions in the iron and steel schedule as to be viewed with alarm by the workingmen employed in these industries included in the iron and steel schedule and other industries dependent thereon, especially at this time, following a long period of depression, with hundreds of thousands of American workmen idle and actually asking for bread. The bill as presented literally hands them a stone. Employees of American tin plate mills will strenuously oppose the recommendation in the bill on the drawback feature as applied to tin plate, as they believe they should secure the work now done in Wales and imported under the provisions of the drawback feature.

"We are satisfied that there will be universal protest against the sweeping reductions included in this bill, hence we request that the consideration of each and every item, to the end that American workmen shall be protected in their labor."

It was exhaustive and included in the theories of the state and defense a digest of the testimony of every witness who testified. Judge Hart held that no epithet, editorial or speech was sufficient to justify even an assault.

It was useless for the party managers to urge upon him the impossibility of providing the necessary two-thirds vote; Ames said he could get the remaining votes from the other side. And so the steering committee had given the word to put it through for him. Then the other side, seeing a chance to place the majority in an embarrassing attitude before the people, either as the proponents or the opponents of such a radical measure—whichever way it went in the end—had been glad enough to furnish the additional votes. The members of the steering committee had afterward whispered it about that the resolution was to die in the senate. Then every one, especially the women of Illinois, had promptly forgotten the measure.

As Vernon thought over it all he picked up the rose again, then laid it down, and idly picked up the card. Turning it over in his hand he saw that its other side was engraved, and he read:

MARIA BURLEY GREENE
Attorney and Counselor at Law.
The Rookery Chicago

Then he knew; it was the work of the woman lawyer. Vernon had heard of her often; he had never seen her. He gave a little sniff of disgust.

The senate was droning along on the order of reports from standing committees, and Vernon, growing tired of the monotony, rose and sauntered back to the lobby in search of company more congenial than that of the gruff Burns. He carried the rose as he went, raising it now and then to enjoy its cool petals and its fragrance. On one of the leather divans that stretch themselves invitingly under the tall windows on each side of the senate chamber sat a woman, and about her was a little group of men, bending deferentially. As he passed within easy distance one of the men saw him and beckoned. Vernon went over to them.

"Miss Greene," said Senator Martin, "let me present Senator Vernon of Chicago."

Miss Greene gave him the little hand that looked yet smaller in its glove of black suede. He bowed low to conceal a surprise that had sprung incautiously to his eyes. Instead of the thin, short-haired, spectacled old maid that had always, in his mind, typified Maria Burley Greene, here was a young woman who apparently conformed to every fashion, though her beauty and distinction might have made her independent of conventions. Physically she was too nearly perfect to give at once an impression of aristocracy; but it was her expression that charmed; it was plain that her intellectuality was of the higher degrees.

As Vernon possessed himself he was able to note that this surprising young woman was clad in a black traveling gown that fitted her perfectly. From her spring had down to the toes of her boots there was nothing in her attire that was mannish, but she was of an exquisite daintiness wholly feminine and alluring.

All these superficial things faded into their proper background when, at last, his eyes looked full in her face. Reddish brown hair that doubtless had been combed into some resemblance to the prevailing fashion of the pompadour, had fallen in a natural part on the right side and lightly swept a brow not too high, but white and thoughtful. Her other features—the delicate nose, the full lips, the perfect teeth, the fine chin—all were lost in the eyes that looked frankly at him. As he gazed he was conscious that he feared to hear her speak; surely her voice would betray her masculine quality.

She had seated herself again, and now made a movement that suggested a drawing aside of her skirts to make a place for some one at her side. And then she spoke.

"Will you sit down, Senator Vernon?" she said, with a scrupulous regard for title unusual in a woman. "I must make a convert of Senator Vernon, you know," she smiled on the other men about her. Her accent implied that this conversion was of the utmost importance. The other men, of whom she seemed to be quite sure, evidently felt themselves under the compulsion of withdrawing, and so fell back in reluctant retreat.

CHAPTER III.

The surprise had leaped to Vernon's eyes again at the final impression of perfection made by her voice, and the surprise changed to a regret of lost and irreclaimable opportunity when he reflected that he had lived for years with this woman lawyer and yet never had seen her once in all that time. When Miss Greene turned to look him in the face again, after the others were gone, Vernon grew suddenly bashful, like a big boy. He felt his face flame hotly. He had been meditating some drawing-room speech; he had already turned in his mind a pretty sentence in which there was a discreet reference to Portia; Vernon was just at the age for classical allusions. But when he saw her blue eyes fixed on him and read the utter seriousness in them he knew that compliments would all be lost.

"I am one of your constituents, Senator Vernon," she began, "and I am down, frankly, lobbying for this resolution."

"And we both," he replied, "are, I believe, members of the Cook county bar. Strange, isn't it, that two Chicago lawyers should have to wait until they are in Springfield to meet?"

"Not altogether," she said. "It is not so very strange—my practice is almost wholly confined to office work; I am more of a counselor than a barrister. I have not often appeared in court; in fact I prefer not to do so; I am—well, just a little timid in that part of the work."

The femininity of it touched him. He might have told her that he did not often appear in court himself, but he was new enough at the bar to have to practice the dissimulation of the young professional man. He indulged himself in the temptation to allow her to go undisturbed, though with a pang he remembered that her practice, from all that he had heard, must be much more lucrative than his. Something of the pretty embarrassment she felt before courts and juries was evidently on her in this her first appearance in the senate, but she put it away; her breast rose with the deep breath of resolution she drew, and she straightened to look him once more in the eyes.

"But about this resolution, Senator Vernon; I must not take up too much of your time. If you will give me your objections to it perhaps I may be able to explain them away. We should very much like to have your support."

Vernon scarcely knew what to reply; such objections as he might have found at other times—the old masculine objections to women's voting and meddling in politics—had all disappeared at sight of this remarkable young woman who wished to vote her self; he could not think of one of them, try as he would. His eyes were on the rose.

"Perhaps your objections are merely prejudices," she ventured boldly, in her eyes a latent twinkle that disturbed him.

"I confess, Miss Greene," he began, "trying to get back something of his senatorial dignity, such as state senatorial dignity is, that I have not devoted much thought to the subject; I am indeed rather ashamed to acknowledge that I did not even know the amendment was coming up to-day, until I was—ah—so delightfully reminded by your rose."

He raised the rose to inhale its fragrance. She made no reply, but she kept her eyes on him, and her gaze compelled him to go on. It was hard for him to go on, for it was now but a struggle against the formality of a surrender that had been inevitable from the beginning. But his man's pride forced him to delay it as long as possible.

Tom Reed's Insinuation.
Once when Thomas B. Reed was with the late Senator Wolcott of Colorado and Joseph Choate, Mr. Choate, when asked to take a drink, said that he never drank, never smoked to excess, and never gambled in his life. Wolcott, who was a sinner in every one of these lines, looked pathetically at Reed and said: "I wish I could say that." "Say it," said Reed; "Choate did."

Idleness.
It is no more possible for an idle man to keep together a certain stock of knowledge than it is possible to keep together a stock of ice exposed to the meridian sun. Every day destroys a fact, a relation, or an influence; and the only method of preserving the bulk and value of the pile is by constantly adding to it.—Sidney Smith.

Time's Changes in Venezuela.
Venezuela received its musical name from the early Spanish residents, who saw a resemblance to Venice in the sites of the inland cities. The llanos, or bleak plains, on which the llaneros live a precarious life, have largely changed their character since Humboldt saw them. Then these great plains of grass supported innumerable herds of cattle; but civil war led to the destruction of the beasts to feed the insurgents. The llanos are now rapidly becoming a potential source of timber.

Statesman's Complaint.
England's house of commons wants ventilation. Plenty of air is pumped into the chamber, and it comes through the gratings on the floor, but it comes from a spot just over the bank of the Thames river, with its ill-favored barges. And the other evening a member met a colleague with his handkerchief to his nose. "You never know what will pass inside," he spluttered, "but you always know what's passing outside."

Birds as Weather Prophets.
If birds in general peck at their feathers, wash themselves and fly to their nests, expect rain. Parrots and canaries dress their feathers and are wakeful the evening before a storm. If the peacock cries when he goes to roost, it is a sign of rain. Long and loud singing of robins in the morning denotes rain.

Origin of the Mennonites.
The Mennonites grew out of four sects of Dutch, Flemish and German Baptists. They derive their name from Menno Simons, a Catholic priest who became a leader of the Anabaptists in about 1537. Simons was born in 1492 and died in 1537. His "True Christian Belief" was published three years before his death. Following the death of the leading spirit the sect underwent divisions and changes of creed.

Disillusioned Widows.
A writer in a Washington paper thinks that widows make the best wives and presents an interesting array of historical widows showing that the weed-wearing state is conducive to soul development that makes for the managing of other husbands than the one for whom she mourns. She knows that a man is a contradiction before she begins and there is no danger of her losing her illusions.

The Rights of Roosters.
An Atchison county farmer's wife brought four dozen young roosters to town the other day. Not a pullet in the bunch. These chickens will be fried. Do the roosters get a square deal? The roosters are fried and the pullets live. Isn't life as precious to a rooster as to a pullet?—Atchison Globe.

TOBACCO PESTS.
(From A. S. of E. Tobacco News.)

Government is Waging War on Them.

For the past two years the Bureau of Entomology, Department of Agriculture, has been studying the tobacco worm with a view of finding out by what means the extermination of this pest might be successfully brought about. These experiments have been conducted by A. C. Morgan, of the department. Mr. Morgan has prosecuted the work in the dark tobacco district of Kentucky and Tennessee, making his headquarters at Clarksville, Tenn., but having experimental plots of ground at many other places. He recently has issued a report upon the work, which is of deep interest and important to the tobacco growers everywhere.

The unprecedented damage which was caused in the spring of 1907 to tobacco plant beds by the flea beetle is declared by Mr. Morgan to have been entirely unnecessary, and could have been prevented by the farmers, had they fixed their plant beds so that the insects could not have crawled in at the sides or through torn places in the canvas. He tells the tobacco raisers how to fix their plant beds so as to prevent a repetition of the loss. However, if the beetles do get in, Mr. Morgan tells the farmers to sprinkle the plants with a solution of one-half pound of arsenate of lead in the powdered form, or one pound of the paste to twelve or sixteen gallons of the solution being sufficient for 240 yards of plant bed. This solution is to be used in a spray pump, of which he describes several kinds.

Grasshoppers, flea beetles, tree crickets, etc., often attack the young plants soon after they are set out in the fields, and here again the solution of arsenate of lead is said to be a sure remedy. The cost is about thirty-five cents per acre. Mr. Morgan says arsenate of lead is more desirable for use on tender plants than paris green, and he gives several reasons for this.

Cutworms are also another source of trouble, and he urges the farmers to plow up the fields in the fall that are to be put in tobacco the next spring. This kills out large numbers of the cutworms. If they become bothersome, he says to mix one pound of paris green with forty gallons of water; dip clover into this and scatter it about over the field; or a bran mash may be made. He warns the farmers to keep live stock and poultry away from the fields while the poison is out.

Taking up the tobacco worm, which is the most serious menace to the tobacco crops each year, Mr. Morgan describes how the moth lays its eggs, averaging from 600 to 1,100 to each female; how the eggs hatch in from two to six days, according to temperature and conditions; how the larva, or worm, goes into the ground in about three weeks to pupate; then finally how the moth fly emerges; the entire operation from egg-laying to the appearance of the moth being from six to eight weeks. The larvae, or worms, that go into the ground in August and September, will not emerge as moths until the next May, June or July, and Mr. Morgan says that if the fields are plowed up as deeply as possible during the fall a large per cent will be thus destroyed. He says that another great preventive is by poisoning "jinson weed" blossoms with cobalt, and thus poison the moths, which fly about them.

He says paris green is the best thing for killing out the worms after they appear on the plants, and he recommends that air-slacked lime be mixed with the paris green, and this be applied with a dust gun. It is best to apply it to the plants while they are damp from dew or rain, as then it adheres better. He says that the operator need fear no danger, provided he does not work facing the wind. "Go quartering to the wind, and bathe thoroughly the whole body when quitting work," is his suggestion.

The investigation will be continued during the coming summer, and it is believed that with the start already attained methods will be developed which will entirely forestall and eradicate the tobacco worm and other insects which prey upon tobacco and cause a loss of thousands of dollars each year.

The nation's production of abrasive garnet in 1907, 7,058 short tons, was the greatest on record, exceeding the previous year's production by 52 per cent.

—DRYING TOBACCO BY STEAM.
(From A. S. of E. Tobacco News.)

One of the most important and practical developments in recent years in the handling of leaf tobacco is the improvement and perfection of the steam redryer. By the use of these machines what once took months to do, namely, put leaf tobacco in sweet keeping order, is now done in minutes.

These machines are both simple and efficient. They vary in capacity from 10,000 to 100,000 pounds per day. The machine the writer has particularly in mind is a box-like looking affair 140 feet long, 12 feet wide, and about 8 feet high. It is fitted with a wire apron which runs through its entire length on rolls, and also two parallel sets of moving chains. The tobacco may be either laid on this apron, or kept on the sticks, which are hung on these moving chains, and carried through. This latter is the method mostly employed when redrying unstemmed tobacco.

The machine is divided into seven compartments, each 20 feet long. The first three are lined with many coils of pipe for conveying steam heat. As the tobacco moves through these it is thoroughly dried by the heat. The first compartment has the highest temperature, and this is reduced as the tobacco loses its moisture. Each of these compartments has its thermometer, so the operator always knows just what the temperature is.

The fourth compartment is for cooling the tobacco after it is hot and dry. This is equipped with a large revolving fan, which draws cold air down through specially constructed air shafts.

Here the tobacco is cooled so that it will ease properly in the casing compartments.

Up to this time the tobacco has come in contact with nothing but hot and cold air, and when it has gone through these four compartments it is dry enough to keep for ever.

In the last three compartments the tobacco is cased so that it can be packed in hogsheads. These are fitted with both water and steam sprays. However the steam and water are not sprayed directly on the leaf but on the floor of the machine, from which the vapor rises. Thus giving the case but not discoloring the leaf. When the tobacco emerges from the last of these compartments it is ready to go into the hogshead.

Every compartment has above it a rapidly revolving fan which keeps the air continually circulating, preventing scorching and insuring uniform drying. At intervals on both sides of the machine are little doors through which the operator may see or feel the tobacco as it passes. Thus every precaution is allowed and taken to see that the tobacco goes through under the most favorable conditions. This machine has a redrying capacity of 40,000 pounds per day.

The tobacco is handed directly from the machine into the hogshead, where it is prized by the same motive power that operates the redryer. The press so used is a power press, and with it are six flat trucks on which the hogsheads set as they are filled.

The hogsheads are rolled alternately under the press, and it keeps their packers and tenders busy to handle all of the tobacco as it comes from the redryer.

By this method soft winter order tobacco is redried, properly cased, and goes into the hogshead—to be kept there indefinitely—in from eighteen to forty minutes after reaching the machine—whatever speed the operator desires.

As a practical and economical way for handling large quantities of leaf tobacco the steam method has no equal.

During the winter of 1907-08 the writer was in close touch with a plant which redried and prized over 1500 hogsheads for farmers. Receiving the tobacco in any condition they brought it in, keeping every crop separate, and redrying, pricing, and delivering aboard cars for $1.00 per hundred. During the past two months over 1300 hogsheads of this tobacco have been sampled and passed on and every hogshead accepted by the purchasers as sound and sweet, excepting one only. And this one hogshead was not badly off—probably was slightly fumed before going into the machine. Both high grades and low grades came out in the best of condition. Every county in the tobacco growing districts should have a steam redrying plant, owned by the farmers themselves.

WHAT DID KNOX TELL ESPINOSA?

Washington Speculates as to Contents of Note.

IS TIRED OF TURMOIL

Secretary of State Anxious to Remove Menace to Foreign Interests in Central American States — Prominent Official Says South American Countries Anxious For Intervention
of United States and Mexico in Affairs of States Having Trouble.

Washington, March 18.—Considerable interest, attended with much guessing as to what may be its full import, is attached to the note which Secretary of State Knox dispatched to Senor Espinosa, the Nicaraguan minister, and which is supposed to contain a statement of the American government's present attitude on the Emery claim, which the United States has been trying to have arbitrated for years. Secretary Knox declined to say anything about the communication.

The secretary has been discussing the Central American situation with public men and with his congressional callers during the short period he has been in the state department, and it is known that he wants to see an end in sight of the perennial disturbances which are a menace to the welfare of the various countries and a source of annoyance to the United States.

That the permanent establishment of peaceful conditions in Central America may be brought about by the United States and Mexico is the opinion held and the wish expressed by the large South American countries,
according to a statement of a prominent government official and a close student of Latin-American affairs.

He declared there had been a recent change of attitude in these countries toward the United States, an attitude which would not have been possible several years ago. This is due, he added, more than to any other cause, to the manner in which this government handled the Cuban situation, gaining thereby the confidence of the South American republics in the honesty of purpose and truthfulness of declaration of the United States. He pointed out that the administration papers in Brazil, Argentina and other countries are favoring action by this government vigorous enough to bring the Central American republics to a realization of the fact that the welfare of all the American republics demands that they remain at peace with each other.

WILD GAME PLENTIFUL

Indications Point to Successful Trip
For Roosevelt.

Mombassa, British East Africa,
March 18.—Interest in the prospect for good sport in the coming season,
stimulated by the coming of Theodore Roosevelt, has brought detailed reports of the movements of game into Mombassa.

Baron Tallyan de Vizen, a prominent Hungarian, who has just returned here from a hunting trip, reports splendid sport with hippopotami on the upper Tana river, and for the shooting of this game he recommends the district between the Athi and the Tana rivers. The eland, gnu and oryx stalking is perfect, with the exception that hunters of this game are constantly interfered with by unusually aggressive rhinoceros. Lions are plentiful, but with some exceptions
they seem to be timid.

MINERS ARE BUSY

Organizers Secure Many Recruits In Anthracite Field.

Seranton, Pa., March 18.—Miners in this district are conducting a great campaign of reorganization, and meetings are being held nightly in different localities for the purpose of getting the men back into line. Two large mass meetings were held, one at Throop and the other at Pittston,
at both of which large numbers rejoined the organization.

The organizers in the field are leaving no stone unturned in indicating by the fact that they are out early in the morning buttonholing all men on their way to work, and again in the evening when they are returning home.

FARMER ASSASSINATED

Is Shot Down While at His Work.
Negro Tenant Suspected.

Muskogee, Okla., March 18.—A. L.
McLemore, a wealthy farmer residing at Stone Bluff, near Haskell, Okla., was shot and killed while at work on his farm. A negro tenant with whom McLemore had quarreled over a settlement of rent is suspected.

First Boat Crosses Lake.

Detroit, Mich., March 18.—The big car ferry Ashtabula has achieved the distinction of being the first boat to cross Lake Erie in 1909. The ferry made the trip from Ashtabula, O., to the plant of the Great Lakes engineering works here, in 20 hours, after ward battle with fields of ice.

EYE WITNESS TALKS

Man Who Saw Petrosino Killed Unable to Describe Assassins.

Rome, March 18.—The Italian government sent a telegraphic communication to the authorities of a large number of cities requesting that a vigorous search be instituted for the murderers of Lieutenant Petrosino, or their accomplices. Especial vigilance is being observed in Constantinople, Tunis, Marseilles, Malta and parts of Egypt, while detectives have been sent to places where the Mafia is known to have many adherents.

According to a man now in the hands of the police at Palermo, who claims to be the only witness to the murder, the crime was committed by two men, who came upon Petrosino suddenly and fired at him when a few feet distant. The assassins immediately fled and the witness, terrified at the tragedy, also ran away. Later he visited police headquarters and gave a brief account of the affair, but he was unable to describe the murderers except to say that they were both short in stature.

Newcomb Held to Court.

San Francisco, March 18.—Charles L. Newcomb, Jr., son of an Ohio steel manufacturer, who is charged with embezzling $3,000 while acting as Pacific coast manager of the Platt iron works of Dayton, O., was arraigned in police court. His case was set for hearing on March 25. Meanwhile he is at liberty on $1,000 cash bond, wired by his father.

LEADER OF CUBAN REVOLT IS KILLED

Government Believes Trouble
With Rural Guards at End.

Havana, March 18.—The indications are that the government is now in a fair way to crush promptly the incipient revolution which broke out in the province of Santa Clara.

The palace officials announced that the father of two of the members of the band headed by Sergeant Cortes of the rural guard, had visited General Montequedo, chief of the guard, at Camajuani, and told him that the insurgents implored the clemency of the government and were anxious to surrender on the promise that their lives would be spared. General Mon-tequedo, accompanied by a strong escort, thereupon started for the insurgent camp.

It is declared on apparently responsible authority that Cortes is accompanied by fully 100 men, mounted and well armed. Some gratifying to the government than the prospective capture of the insurgent band was the arrest and subsequent killing of Former Captain La Vastida of the rural guard, who is believed to have been the principal instigator of the uprising. La Vastida was arrested by Major Arteaga of the rural guard and was charged with conspiracy, and was killed while trying to escape.

MAIL CARRIERS JOIN STRIKERS

Paris Cut Off From the Outside World.

CLEMENCEAU STANDS FIRM

Premier Says Government Will Not Recede From Determination to Force Dissatisfied Employees to the Wall and Latter Declare They Will Fight to the Bitter End—Troops In Readiness to Quell disturbances In Capital Today.

Paris, March 18.—The letter carriers have joined the strike of the telegraphers, telephone operators and mail clerks employed by the postoffice department. At a meeting they voted by a large majority to begin a strike this morning after the first delivery. Eight hundred postmen employed in the delivery of newspapers and parcels went out after the distribution last night.

The strike movement is gaining rapidly, Paris being practically isolated from the rest of France and France from the outside world. Eight thousand strikers met last night and passed a resolution to maintain the struggle to the bitter end.

Premier Clemenceau declares that the government is ready for a fight and will not recede in its determination to force the strikers to the wall.
A very serious situation, however, has arisen through the inability of the government to communicate with its foreign representatives, the strikers having cut the private telephone wires connecting the Elysee palace
with the various ministries.

Troops are held in readiness at Versailles to reinforce the Paris troops in case any demonstrations of a serious nature occur today, which is a holiday. There is an alarming rumor that the secretary of the railroad employes union has promised to order out these men in a sympathetic strike.

DISCUSS OHIO PATRONAGE

Republican Leaders to Help Taft Distribute the Plums.

Washington, March 18.—A conference on the Ohio situation, the distribution of patronage being the chief feature, was held at the White House.
It lasted an hour and a half. There with the president were Senator Burton, State Chairman Henry H. Williams of the Republican organization and A. I. Vorys. There are many appointments to be made soon, and the handling of these will be given close attention. Mr. Vorys said he wished it distinctly understood that he wanted no federal office, did not expect to have one offered him and would give up politics in the future for his law practice.

conference between Representatives of the firemen on the Pennsylvania lines and Chairman Knapp of the interstate commerce commission and Dr. Charles P. Neill, commissioner of labor—the officials constituting the board of mediation under the Erdman act—the firemen were informed that such grievances as they had submitted to the board did not constitute a ground for action by the board.

ACTIVITY AMONG CLARK FARMERS

It Is Thought That Much Tobacco
Will Be Grown in County
This Year.

Probably never before in the history of this county was there as much activity noticed among the farmers as there is at present. The bad weather that has prevailed the last month has greatly hindered the work on the farm and very little has been done so far but during the past few days since the good weather has set in, the work has begun in earnest
and from now until late in the fall the blue grass farms will be the scene of much activity.

At present plowing is the most important feature of the farm work that is being done and more of that is being done than there has been for some time which is probably due to the large amount of tobacco that will be grown in this county this year.

It is estimated by some farmers
that there will be as much as fifty per cent more tobacco grown in this county this year than ever before.
Tobacco is generally grown on land
that has not been used for planting purposes for several years and the planting of such a tremendous crop this year will mean the plowing of many of the blue grass fields on the pikes near this city that have so long added much to the beauty of this county.

Several large tobacco barns have been erected during the past year to take care of the large amount that is expected to be grown this year and several more are now under construction.

It is said that farm hands are scarce this year and also tobacco tenants and it is feared that much suffering will be felt by the farmers
on this account.

NO VERDICT IS FOUND IN THE TURNER CASE

Seven Murder Trials in Breathitt To Be Heard at June Term
of Court.

JACKSON, Ky., March 18.—At a late hour yesterday afternoon the jury in the James Turner case had not agreed. This is the second important murder case at the present term of court in which there has been a hung jury. The criminal part of the court closed with this case.
Nearly five weeks of the term have been occupied constantly in the trial of felony cases, the majority of which were murder cases. There remains on the docket for trial at the June term seven murder cases which were continued.

During the first ten days the grand jury was active in investigating local conditions and in returning indictments over four hundred being reported. The majority of these were for illegal selling of whisky, one dealer being under one hundred separate charges.

Immediately following the return of these indictments the clerk issued bench warrants to be served at once but when the Sheriff went to look for him he could not be found, having disappeared between two suns.
He is said to have taken refuge in an adjoining State to avoid the jurisdiction of this court. The fines would aggregate $10,000 if he should be tried and convicted on all the counts against him. The present term of court will close on Friday of this week.

Brought By Dentist Whose

MT. STERLING, Ky., March 18.—
D. E. W. Brown, dentist, of this city, has filed suit in Circuit Court here

Kemper alienated the affections of his wife, Clara Brown, and destroyed
his peace and happiness. Mrs.
Brown has left the city. The petition is short, but to the point. The suit will come up for trial at the April term of the Montgomery Circuit Court.

cessary.

NO CHANCE FOR ANY NEW BUILDINGS

Pork Barrel Will Probably Not Be Opened at Present Session Of Congress.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—It will be a disappointment to Kentucky citizens that are clamoring for public buildings to learn that there may not be any public building legislation during the Sixty-first Congress, which has just begun. The capacity of the supervising architects' office is strained to such an extent that Supervisor Architect Taylor will use his influence against any further appropriations during any of the sessions of the Sixty-first Congress.

"Enough appropriations already have been made to keep my office busy for three years turn out completed buildings at the rate of fifteen every month," he said.

In view of the congested condition of Mr. Taylor's office and the large treasury deficit, it is believed the cherished plan of many Congressmen
to pass an omnibus buildings pork bill at the session next winter will have to be abandoned.

Mr. Taylor's attitude is not due to a lack of sympathy for the plan of distributing public buildings over the country in small towns.

"From the standpoint of pure economy the construction of public buildings in small towns cannot be justified," said Mr. Taylor, "but there is another side to question. It is well to consider both sides. For instance, it would never pay the government, as a financial investment, to construct a public building in a Kentucky county seat town at a cost of $50,000. The interest on that amount of money at 2 per cent is $1-000 a year. The fixed charges would be $1,800 a year. Thus we would have an annual outlay of $2,800, while the government could lease the best quarters in the town for the use of the Federal officials at a cost probably of not more than $600 a
year.

Frank Gordan, Jr., Has Returned
From Season's Work at Horse Cave, Kentucky.

Frank Gordan, Jr., who represents the American Tobacco Company, at Horse Cave, Ky., having finished the season's work has returned to his home here. Mr. Gordan says that he bought six hundred thousand pounds more tobacco this season than in any other year and that the acreage of tobacco will be largely increased and that there is more money in the hands of farmers in Hart and adjoining counties than ever before. He estimates that ten million pounds of burley tobacco will be raised in the territory tributary to Horse Cave this year.
